ANNUAL REPORT OF THE CLASSIFIED STAFF REPRESENTATIVE TO THE BOARD OF GOVERNORS

Lisa A. Martin, classified staff representative on the WVU Board of Governors, presented the annual classified staff presentation.

- Lisa advised that there is a total of 1,931 classified staff as of January 1, 2019. Included in this number is 1,768 at WVU, 83 at WVU Tech and 80 at Potomac State College. However, the number of classified staff continue to decline. Over the last five years, we have lost 922 positions with 300 in the last year alone. However, this doesn't necessarily mean all of them left for employment elsewhere. Since the 'Freedom Agenda' of 2017, positions posted since then are now based on exempt and non-exempt status with classified positions being non-exempt and exempt positions as non-classified. So, going forward, it will be slightly more of a challenge to explain the downward trend in classified staff numbers without knowing what the non-classified numbers are for comparison. With the important jobs our classified staff do, it is important to monitor the classified staff numbers so they do not go beyond a critical threshold as to threaten the stability of our institution.
- Classified staff support WVU in a variety of roles. We are teachers, accountants, electricians and plumbers, IT, food service workers, groundskeepers, police officers, campus service workers, lab managers, event coordinators, administrative assistants, and the list goes on. Classified staff are everywhere and do everything necessary to keep this campus and our sister institutions up and running
- Many classified staff have bachelor's and master's degrees, some of which were earned utilizing the Classified Staff Tuition Assistance program. This scholarship program allows staff to work towards earning their first Since its implementation more than 20 years ago, almost $1.4m has gone towards classified staff tuition. Having fewer staff, of course, means doing more with less putting a strain on staff that have elected to remain loyal to this institution. In April 2018, select departments were reviewed for salary disparities and various increases were given to bring them closer to market. Supervisors across the University were asked to complete first-level performance reviews by July 1. All the while an updated University-wide compensation schedule was in the works.
- In August, the new long-overdue compensation schedule was unveiled. Final reviews of performance evaluations were completed and merit-based pay increases were distributed in October with 2% being the average percentage. At the time the raises were given, 125 classified staff received the 2% and 1,791 classified staff received above 2%. The average increase amount was $1,278 at an average of 3.72%. There were 53 staff that were ineligible to receive any increase due to unsatisfactory performance rating or an active disciplinary status. Additionally, employees hired after July 1 were also not eligible. We are heading in the right direction where compensation is concerned but we can't let our guard down now. Each year that goes by without an increase, we risk losing employees to other employers who are keeping up with market and offering other benefits.

- We still have staff in the $18,642.00 to $27,943.50 pay range in the lower paygrades. Fortunately, PEIA premiums and deductibles have remained stable even if only temporarily but other fees continue to chip away at take home pay, though, like the city user fee of $3.00 per week, parking fees that average around $300.00 a year and the rising cost of living expenses such as child care or elderly care, housing and other everyday items. Classified staff saw other challenges in 2018 with the transition from Dining Services to Sodexo effective August 2018. The terms of the contract stipulated that staff with fewer than 3 years of service would become Sodexo employees while those with more than 3 years would have a choice to stay with WVU or go with Sodexo. 176 Dining Services employees were affected. 55 had less than 3 years of service while 121 had more than three. Of those 121, 84 chose to remain with WVU, 36 became Sodexo employees while 36 left the University - 31 resigned and 5 retired. The transition to Sodexo continues to address issues that include personnel and operational.
- As in previous years, we want to keep introducing you to our classified staff so that you will continue to learn what we do for your institution. Lisa then introduced the following individuals:
- Tim Richards - did you know WVU is fortunate enough to have one of two piano technicians in the state higher ed institutions? Tim Richards is one of the two and works at the College of Creative Arts making sure the pianos are in tip top shape. Tim was unable to attend today's presentation in person but Lisa played a brief video about his work. The video was created by journalism student Andrew Aluise.
- Rebecca Digmon – can you imagine living in another country and sending your son or daughter to live thousands of miles away to study in the United States? You hope and pray they are safe, taken care of and treated with respect. One of those people tasked to help International students adjust works in my building. Rebecca Digmon is a prime example of someone who loves her job and the students she comes in contact with. Rebecca appeared at the podium to tell everyone more about her job.

- Barbara Foster slide - we also have classified staff tasked with keeping our students safe in the classrooms and labs. Barbara Foster is certified by the National Registry of Certified Chemists/Certified Chemical Hygiene Officer and is the college safety officer for Eberly College of Arts and Sciences as well as the chemical hygiene officer for the C. Eugene Bennett Department of Chemistry. Barbara appeared at the podium to tell everyone more about her job.
- Lisa then introduced Michael Cannon, Staff Council chair for Potomac State, who provided a brief presentation on classified staff at the Potomac State campus.
- Lisa then introduced Barbara Boyd, chair of the classified staff council at WVU Tech and Barbara provided a brief presentation on classified staff at the Tech campus.
- Lisa resumed her presentation by stating that classified staff continue to work every day and provide the foundation for the institution. She indicated however that WVU cannot continue to maintain quality staff if we are not willing to invest in this human capital. WVU may be one of the largest employers in the state but we are not the only employer. The competition is waiting in the wings. Competitive wages and benefits need to be just that in order to keep our talented employees. This includes faculty as well. If we are to be truly ONE WVU, we must catch up with and stay ahead of the competition. For each year employees don't receive a pay increase, that means we risk falling behind the rising cost of living and other increases.
- Lisa reminded the audience that PEIA costs remained steady but that's just a band aid. It is inevitable that we will again face PEIA increases at some point as well as other increases across the board and without consistent pay increases, we risk sliding backwards resulting in the loss of skilled employees and their institutional knowledge. We have to take care of our employees and their families. In the coming months, She therefore urged that there be considered another pay increase for our WVU family.
- In closing Lisa asked Lt. Josh Cook and Nina to join Staff Council chair Michael Torries, Vice Chair Peggy Runyon and herself. In fiscal year 2015-2016, Lt. Josh Cook acquired a second explosives detection pup by the name of Nina. That same year, Staff Council approved the purchase of a K9 vest for the new University Police dog. She had a lot of learning and growing to do, though, before one could be ordered for her. Nina has finally grown into her vest. On behalf of Staff Council, Lisa, Michael and Peggy presented the University Police Department with a K9 vest for Nina.

Other notable events included a visit from the National Academy of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine and our annual Long-Form Scholarship Celebration. I am excited to watch Research Week grow in future years!

Internal Faculty Awards

- Every year around this time, I get to announce a whole series of exciting awards for our faculty, staff and students. This year, I am delighted to report that we gave out our Benedum Distinguished Scholar Awards, in all four categories. PRESIDENT'S REPORT

President Gee offered the following comments:

Leadership changes

As Provost McConnell outlined, this is a time of great change at our University. Serving as president at Colorado State is a wonderful and well-deserved opportunity for Joyce. I am thrilled for her while recognizing that our community will miss her visionary and enthusiastic leadership. Of course, I also once left West Virginia University to lead a university in Colorado. So, on the bright side, if Joyce continues to follow my pattern, we will only have to wait until 2047 to welcome her back. It came as no surprise to us that Joyce has been sought to lead other institutions. Her talents, combined with her passion for higher education, elevated not only West Virginia University, but also the state of West Virginia. A valuable member of our team, she leads with strategy and thoughtfulness — and produces results. Our University and Colorado State share many similarities, including the goals of being model 21st Century schools. I fully expect Joyce to have an immediate national presence. Colorado State University is truly selecting one of the best. With a provost leaving, as well as three deans and an associate provost, our situation may appear chaotic to an outside observer. Like any transition, however, these changes give us great opportunity to reinvigorate the University and speed our momentum as a leading 21st century land-grant institution. Cardinal John Henry Newman once said: “To live is to change, and to be perfect is to change often.” A University campus offers the best possible vantage point on this timeless truth. Our community is always in flux.

Currently, as we prepare for graduation, we are also recruiting our newest class of students. Tomorrow, hundreds of potential Mountaineers will be on our campus with their families, seeing all we have to offer on Decide WVU Day. I have already met many of our incoming students, and their creative, enthusiastic spirit inspires me. Next month, as we bid goodbye to the Class of 2019, five of the best incoming students will earn our prestigious Foundation Scholarship. We have bid goodbye to our outgoing Student Government Administration leaders and are welcoming Kate Dye and Madison Matheny as president and vice president. They are incredible young people who are passionate about making our campus a vibrant, supportive home for all Mountaineers. We are bidding goodbye to the academic leaders who have done much to help us become a great student-centered research university. But soon we will welcome new leaders who further our constant reinvention as the “people’s university,” powered by purpose and buoyed by our commitment to helping people succeed.

Truman Scholar

From year to year, faces change. Facilities change. Fashions change. But our commitment never does. Kassandra Colón, who became our 24th Truman Scholar yesterday, is a perfect example. The Truman is the premier award for those who are pursuing careers in public service. A Florida native and first-generation college student, Kassandra earned a full scholarship here for her skills in debate. Debate, she says, sparked her love for advocacy and self-discovery. A junior, triple-majoring in Latin American studies, women’s and gender studies and geography, Kassandra has worked with the Title IX office and as an orientation leader to combat discrimination. She also founded Project La Resolana to give back to her home community. She matches students of color in South Florida to books on topics they are interested in learning more about, focusing particularly on literature that helps them connect to their heritage.

Kassandra’s passion for creating inclusive spaces and improving cultural representation in the classroom has grown through her experiences on our campus. Through constant change and reinvention, West Virginia University is strengthening its enduring promise to Kassandra and all those we serve: We will help you succeed and make the world better for all.
